Attorney vs. tax relief company — why it matters

Only attorneys and CPAs can practice before the IRS — many relief companies are not qualified.

⚖️ Attorney-Client Privilege
Your communications are protected. Tax relief companies have no such privilege — IRS can subpoena their files.

📜 Unlimited Practice Rights
Attorneys can represent you in any tax matter — audits, collections, appeals, and tax court.

💰 No Upfront Fees
We work on contingency or flat fees. Tax relief mills often charge thousands upfront with no guarantees.

🏆 Former IRS experience
Many of our attorneys previously worked for IRS Office of Chief Counsel — we know their strategies.
